$50 Fines Follow Loss

'Indifferent' Cougars Hit In Wallets

If you see a Victoria Cougar with a hurt look on his face, it's because he has a pain in the pocketbook.

Coach Pat Egan clipped 10 players for $50 each yesterday, rubbing salt into the raw wounds inflicted by the Saskatoon Quakers Wednesday night. Quakers whipped the Cougars soundly, 7-0, in what Egan termed "an indifferent display."

Egan declined to disclose the names of the players he fined. He did, however, say that Doug Macauley and Doug Anderson, along with Enio Sclisizzi, who did not dress for the game, were among those to escape fines.

"There was no reason to fine Macauley or Anderson," he said. "They've been carrying their weight. Some of the others haven't."

Egan made it clear the players can have their $50 back—if they earn it.

"We don't want their money," he said. "But we want them to understand that we want 100 per cent effort all the time. Wednesday night's game was a definite disappointment, both to the team management and the fans.

"We've had a few bad games this year, but this was the first time they went out on the ice and failed to try for the full 60 minutes. Even when New Westminster beat us 11-3, they kept trying. They let the fans down Wednesday night and we are going to make sure it doesn't happen again."

Cougars can get a good start on earning back their money Saturday night when they host the Winnipeg Warriors, who are battling with Saskatoon for the final playoff spot in the eastern division.

New Golf Hazard in Texas

Sudden snowstorm failed to stop Dallas, Tex., golfer Ray Jefferson from finishing recent round. Caddy D. R. Robinson offers moral support as Jefferson attempts putt over icy surface. His score was not reported.

Richardson Rink All But Champs

QUEBEC—Ernie Richardson's Regina rink virtually assured Saskatchewan of its second Canadian curling championship last night, defeating British Columbia, 13-5, for its eighth straight victory.

Saskatchewan earlier posted a 6-5 victory over Ontario and a 10-6 win over Nova Scotia in other games Thursday.

For British Columbia, it was a disastrous day. Barry Naimark of Vancouver lost twice, dropping an 11-7 decision to Alberta in the afternoon draw after scoring an 8-7 win over Prince Edward Island in the morning draw. B.C. goes into today's two final draws with a 5-3 record and no chance of catching the leaders.

Only Alberta, with a 7-1 record, and Manitoba, with a 6-2 record, have any chance of catching the Regina rink.

MIRACLE NEEDED

But, barring a minor miracle, no one will catch the classy Regina crew. One of their remaining two games is against Quebec, winless in eight starts. The other is against Manitoba.

Alberta meets Manitoba and Northern Ontario, which has proved to be the toughest of the eastern rinks. Manitoba, of course, would have to beat both Saskatchewan and Alberta to even gain a tie for first place.

British Columbia stayed close to Saskatchewan for nine ends but Richardson counted two on each of the last three ends.

DYING EFFORT

Naimark, who curled brilliantly to keep his rink in contention, robbed Saskatchewan of six on the ninth end when he drew to the button. But that was his dying effort.

Winless Quebec gave Alberta a big scare, piling up a 5-1 lead after three ends, but couldn't hold the lead. Alberta finally went ahead on the ninth end when Quebec skip Jack Bergman missed a takeout with the westerners lying three.

Manitoba absorbed its second loss on last night's draw, taking a surprising 10-8 loss at the hands of Prince Edward Island. It was only Prince Edward Island's third victory in eight games.

HEROIC TRY

Ted Sellers' Ontario rink from Unionville made a heroic effort to topple Saskatchewan from the unbeaten ranks before bowing, 6-5.

There were three blank ends, and it was not until Sellers' final rock of the game went inches wide on a takeout, that Saskatchewan could claim the victory.

The game was tied, 4-4, going into the 11th end of the tense struggle. Sellers missed a takeout with his last rock and Richardson coolly drew in for two.

On the final end, Sellers missed a chance to tie when he was wide of the Richardson rock and removed one of his own to count just one.

B.C. had a tough battle with Prince Edward Island, counting one on the final end to take the victory. Against Alberta, however, B.C. trailed all the way.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

In Clearwater, Richie Ashburn emerged from a contract discussion with John Quinn, general manager of the Phillies, saying he and the club were not far apart on terms. "Actually," he said, "you might say our difference is no more than tip money. But I tip pretty good."

This is gratifying news about the National League batting champion, confirming a long standing impression of him as a class guy. The policy he espouses with regard to tipping is not shared by all big league players, as a letter from Jack Orr, of Philadelphia, suggests. Mr. Orr seems saddened because the paramount question in so many minds today is, "What's in it for me?"

"Note," he writes, "how we all, in our various slippery ways, now strive to emulate that Southern California evangelist, Jean Lafitte O'Malley, who has discovered an eternal truth: A pious manner, an empty lot, and a tent, will make more money than was dreamt of in your philosophy, Charley Ebbets. If John Maynard Keynes was right when he said only three people understood money, what's the price on O'Malley being in there?

"Anyway, consider where the man has led us:

"Here in Philadelphia Bob Carpenter, who is six dollars shy of having all the money in the world and drew 900,000 customers with a last-place club, is playing the same game of footsie with the City Fathers of Philadelphia and Camden that himself taught us in Brooklyn. (Carpenter just bought property adjoining the spot where New Jersey plans a modern ball park, but he told Philadelphia's Mayor Dilworth not to worry, that he was only coppering a bet.)

Where Charity Begins

"Consider:

"The major league players' union wants a payroll equal to 20 per cent off the top, a nice, round, meaningless figure which shows the membership that their lawyer is in there thinking. The owners answer that they'll pick up their ball parks and quit the game if they're not allowed to make as much money as they want.

"Consider:

"The pitching hero of the world series, invited to Chicago by the Baseball Writers to receive a kind word and a hunk of hardware for excellence of performance, refuses to go unless he gets his regular $300 speaking fee.

"And these:

"Achie Moore, pressed to tell about his widely discussed diet that keeps over-age men from bulging in the wrong places, entreats newspapermen not to ask. He is coming out with a book on the subject shortly.

"The English balloon people arrive in the wrong country in heroic fashion but insist they are unable to talk to reporters about the trip. They are sewed up exclusively for a series of articles back home.

Uses of Publicity Sweet

"A growing number of athletic heroes won't talk with reporters unless assured of a cut. (Recently a man tried to get some information for a 'Sporting News' piece from Billy Loes, the intellect who made $16,000 for winning three and losing nine games last year. 'How much in it for me?' the pitcher asked. 'Nothing, Bill,' the man said, 'I just want to ask a couple of questions, and for this sort of thing I get as little as $25.' 'Nothing doing,' Loes said. 'I can use $12.50 as well as anybody else.' Showing that grammar school arithmetic wears very well.)

"A big National League and world series hero doesn't believe in tipping, so his club had to change hotels in Chicago last season to get away from angry bellhops and waiters. Once at the Warwick here the same fellow left a dime tip on a $15 dinner check and since then he gets the freeze.

"During the season, ball players scoot for television interviews and the payoff in shaving lotion before they sit for questions from the men on the beat. Even later, as happened with Mickey Mantle during the world series, the press can be given the brush. Mantle was being ghosted for one newspaper chain and he said openly, 'Can't answer that. I got to hold the good stuff back for my article tomorrow.'

Greater Love Hath, Etc.

"A faithful disciple of O'Malley, though he may not have realized it at the time, was Willie Ramsdell, who was with the Brooklyns some years back. Later he moved to the Cubs and went against Carl Erskine the day Carl pitched his no-hitter and almost-perfect game. You may remember that the only man to reach base was Ramsdell on a walk in the third inning.

"Now the Cubs were batting in the ninth and Willie, long gone from the game, was in the club house when the man who herded talent for Happy Felton's post-game show came in. 'Bill, on this show we use a hero from each side and the pay is 50 bucks. Now, Erskine is the Brooklyn hero, natch, and since you're the only guy to reach first, you'll go on for the Cubs. Of course, if somebody got a hit this inning, he'd be the big guy and he'd go on instead of you. Understand?'

"Willie said he thought so. In the television room he sat watching Felton's monitor. Now there were two out and the Cubs sent up a pinch-hitter, Eddie Miksis. It was the last chance to spoil a no-hitter and maybe avert a defeat for Ramsdell. Willie got a little excited at this point.

"'Come on, Carl,' he yelled at the monitor, 'strike the bum out'!"

Victoria All-Stars Capture Island Juvenile Puck Title

NANAIMO — Victoria All-Stars won the Vancouver Island juvenile hockey championship last night, defeating Nanaimo, 4-2, in a sudden-death game.

The series, which started as a two-game, total-point affair, became a three-game series when Victoria won the second game at home, 7-6, in three overtime periods. Nanaimo had won the opening game, 5-4.

Victoria will now meet Vancouver for the coast championship and the right to meet the interior champions for the British Columbia title.

The two teams matched strides for the first periods and went into the third period tied 2-2. But Victoria fired two unanswered goals in the last 20 minutes to win the game.

George Wilson was the big gun for Victoria, scoring three goals including what proved to be the winner.

Mike Woodley scored Victoria's fourth goal.

For Nanaimo, Lennie Slogar and Tom Mullan were the marksmen.

Vancouver Teenaged Bowler Sets Tenpin Triple Record

VANCOUVER—Bill Tewnion, a 17-year-old first-year bowler, posted the most sensational three-game tenpin series ever recorded in B.C. Tuesday.

Tewnion, rolling in a practice session, started off with a fine 259. He followed that with a perfect 300, then came back to finish up with a 298 for an 857. Previous high recorded series was a 727 rolled by Bill Haggerty last year.

Tewnion, who had already tossed a perfect 300 earlier this year, rolled his series under the watchful eye of Gordon Neilson, manager of the Skyway Lanes.

"He threw 26 consecutive strikes during his streak," Neilson said. "And when he was rolling the last game, right after his 300, and was on 11 strikes, he said no one would believe that he threw two perfect games in a row anyway, so he practically threw his last ball away. He was lucky to get eight pins for his 298."

Leafs Lose, Too

'Lum' Blanks Detroit, 3-0

Harry Lumley, a goaltender who enjoyed his moments of greatest glory in the uniform of the Detroit Red Wings, dealt his former teammates' playoff hopes a crushing blow last night.

Boston Bruins, with Lumley replacing Don Simmons, blanked Detroit, 3-0, to leave the Red Wings tie with Toronto for last place.

Montreal Canadiens kept the Maple Leafs from moving out of the league cellar by scoring a 2-1 victory over the desperate Toronto club.

	GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Montreal	61	34	15	12	214	127	80

Detroit	62	23	32	7	144	183	53
Toronto	62	21	30	11	152	177	53

Last night's scores: Toronto 1, Montreal 2; Detroit 0, Boston 3.

Next games: Saturday, Detroit at Montreal; Boston at Toronto; New York at Chicago.

Lumley, playing his 14th season in the NHL, kicked out 29 shots to register the 69th shutout of his NHL career.

LEACH SCORES

Goals by Bronco Horvath, Guy Gendron and rookie Larry Leach were more than enough for the 32-year-old Lumley, who was called up from Providence of the American Hockey League when Simmons underwent an appendectomy in Detroit earlier this week.

Horvath's goal was his 17th of the season, a mark enhanced by the fact he was out for a large part of the season with a fractured jaw. Leach also set up Gendron's goal.

The victory lifted the Bruins three points ahead of the idle New York Rangers and eight points ahead of Toronto and Detroit.

BOWER BUSY

At Montreal, only the fine netminding of Johnny Bower kept the Leafs in the game as the Canadiens fired 34 shots at the Toronto netminder, including 17 in the scoreless third period.

Claude Provost and Dickie Moore gave Montreal a 2-0 lead before Dick Duff scored Toronto's lone goal.

Moore's goal, his seventh winning goal of the season, gave him 75 points and a two-point margin over Andy Bathgate in the individual scoring race. He now has 34 goals.

The victory, which gave Montreal 80 points in the standings, moved the Canadiens within two points of clinching their second straight National Hockey League championship.

Victoria Girls' Teams Ousted from Tourney

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defending champion Kitsilano Komets rocketed to a record 68-30 victory over Victoria's Mount Douglas High School in the opening round of the 10th annual British Columbia high school basketball tournament here Thursday night.

In other games Kamloops whipped Summerland 36-26, King Edward of Vancouver edged Abbotsford 27-26 on a last-second foul shot and Trail needed an overtime period to squeeze past Mount Newton of Victoria 24-23.

Diane Beach paced Kitsilano to their record-winning margin with 24 points. Last year she set an individual one-game record of 30.

Carol Casilo led Mount Douglas with 11.

But the final match of the day between Mount Newton and Trail caught the fancy of most of the 1,500 fans.

Going into the final quarter, Mount Newton had a comfortable 22-14 lead. With a minute remaining, Trail cut the margin to a single point.

Vina Brown, Trail's top scorer with 12 points, tied the score with 34 seconds remaining on a foul shot and forced an overtime period.
